DIPLOMAS PRESENTED TO CLASS OF ELEVEN

Commencement Exercises Are Held by Graduates

CLASS ADDRESS MADE

W. D. Pollock, President of School Board, Talks of Future Prospects

With a bright, cheery outlook upon life, and with a trusting faith in the sentiment contained in their class motto, a German phrase meaning "Patience overcomes everything," the classe of 1912 Charleroi High School entered upon their struggle in life Thursday night when they received their diplomas as graduates. That it was the beginning of activity and not the end, a fact brought out by W. D. Polock, president of the school board in his address to the class, was seemingly well appreciated by the members of the class.

When the eleven young persons assumed their places in a semi-circle on the stage, the girls attired with true simplicity in white, and boys in sombre black, they presented a charming appearance. Palms formed the background. Essays were read by Miss Kate Gamble, Miss Erma Holyfield and Miss Sara Crowthers. Keith Campbell was the orator of the class. Miss Marie Whitehead gave an essay in the form of an oration. The musical part of the program washandled by Miss Behel Bowman, Zenobe Boudoux, Thomas Tippins, and Miss Elma Collins. Readings were given by Miss Letitia Morris and Miss Isabella Dorbritz.

Rev. John R. Burson delivered the invocation. Miss Bethel Bowman rendered a piano solo "Petite Bolero" by Henry Ravina,with an accomplished ease. Her efforts were greatly appreciated.

Miss Kate Gamble had as her subject for her essay, "The Defense of the Nation." In it,she treated of the value of education as a national defense. Sre said that we must maintain true democracy, and education is the greatest factor in that direction.

"Lucia di Lammermoor," by Donizetti, was rendered on the violin by Zenobe Boudoux. He handled this most difficult composition with a skill that brought forth well merited applause.

Pleading for a college education for women that they might be better equipped for the earthly struggle, Miss Erma Holyfield read an essay on "The Higher Education of Women.' She said that a college prepared woman that she might assume her proper sphere in the world with a greater dignity; that it made her more resourceful and economical and a better head of the home.

Miss Lettia Morris read to the delectation of the numerous friends and patrons of High School assembled the "Prelude to the Vision of Sir Launfal," by Lowell.

"Life and Faith of Jack London,' which constituted in the greater part a biography of the noted Socialist writer, was treated by Miss Sara Crowthers in an essay. Miss Crowthers told of London's early struggles to break into the higher crust of society, his disappointments, and finally when he did arrive, of his disappointment at finding it shallow and vain, with the result that he returned to the world of sincerity.

With an artistic touch Thomas Tippins rendered "Twittering of Birds," a composition of Raffaeli Billema. The young perfomer was roundly applauded for this piano number.

"Lady Clare," which is a beautiful Tennyson poem was read by Miss Isabella Dorbritz. The reading was handled in a characteristic manner that brought out its best points vividly, commanding the instant attention of every listener.

Keith Campbell in hsioration of "The World's Greatest Generals." Among them he named the old time conquerors, such as Alexander the Great, Hannibal, Caesar and then descended to the present age mentioning Napoleon as a great soldier and general; Washington, the Father of Our Country as a general of the greatest executive ability, and then spoke of the renowned generals of the Civil War, U. S. Grant and his illustrious rival for honors, Robert E. Lee. Of the great generals he named he said they were not only soldiers but active mer of affairs, who lived for the country's good.

Miss Elma Collins was the soloist of the class and she rendered a pleasing soprano selection, "The Wind." Miss Collins has a voice of beautiful quality and wide range. She won decided applause.

Beginning with the quotation from William Dean Howells that "When an American is not trwing to make money he is trying to make a joke" Miss Marie Whitehead treated the subject, "Humorous America." She said that the American people honestly tried to get all the enjoyment out of life they could, and gave as evidence the fact that in New York city there are twice as many comedies as tragedies produced in the big theatres. She referred to Mark Twain as the father of American humor, and spoke of Lincoln, Irving and J. Howard Davis as among the greatest humorists in American history.

In his address to the class W. D. Pollock president of the school board spoke of the High School of the future, which he said he believed would contain things that would be of more use to the boy and girl of the day than some of the subjects which are now taught. Explaining, he said such things as Domestic Science and Manuel Training would find their way into the curriculum. In speaking to the class he said: "Be sure you have the foundation of yau character builded upon the rocks, and not on the sands. I hope you are building so that however hard the storm of life may assail you they will not batter down your character edifice. I present you these diplomas as evidence that thus far you have withstood the turmoils and wrecks of time and have succeeded in arising to the plane where you are entitled to more than usual honor."

The High School orchestra played numbers preceding the program that won applause. Rev. E. N. Duty pronounced the benediction at the conclusion of the exercise.

Members of the class which received diplomas were:

Elma Myrtle Collins, Marie Emily Whitehead, Kate Augusta Gamble, Zenobe Boudoux, Isabella Euphemia Dorbritz, Bethel Sterling Bowman, Thomas Adam Tippins, Harry Keith Campbell, Erma Cuzine Holyfield, Letitia Elizabeth Morris, Cara Crowthers.

SAYS HE IS GOING TO STARTLE POLITICIANS

Callaghan Thinks He Has a Speech That is a Hummer--Declares He is Answer to Much Discussed Question

"In my speech tonight at the corner of Fifth street and Fallowfield avenue, I'm going to say something that will startle all the politicians of the United States," said Hon Edward Callaghan, who announces that he feels sure of his nomination as the Democratic candidate for President of the United States at the Baltimore convention. "I feel sure that the prophecy of Senator Morgan of Alabama is about to be fulfilled. Here is an extract of that speech, delivered in the United States Senate May 26, 1892. It is the most wonderful political prophecy ever made. Read it!"

The extract of Senator Morgan's speech submitted by Mr. Callaghan is as follows:

"If we produce in the United States 70 per cent of the silver in the world, we have more interest in giving it a money value than any other people in the world. In the month of June the politicians of this country will find that the people will turn their little plans upside down. A man will arise against them who will represent the popular will; a man who is obedient to the construction and the will of the people, and has the courage to declare his position and he will overthrow the money power in spite of all we can do."

"Who is that man unless it be Callaghan of Estherly Terrace, who is attracting the attention of the masses at the present time?" continued Mr. Callaghan. "This speech of Senator Morgan's was delivered in the first session of the 52nd Congress, and is printed in volume 23 of the reports on pages 4704-05."

ELDORA SCENE OF HAPPY GATHERING

Big Crowd There Today to Enjoy School Children's Annual Picnic--Program of Sports This Afternoon

With the weather man behaving usually well and with appointments most auspicious, the annual school picnic and outing is being held at Eldora Park today. A large concourse of children is at the park, and providing the weather keeps good all this afternoon, one of the record breaking crowds of the season at the park is looked for.

The children were carried on special cars to the park, arriving there between 10 and 12 o'clock. Unfortunate accidents which fate dictated should happen this day above all others at two power houses, delayed transportation a trifle but really didn't interfere with the supreme enjoyment of the day for the children. When the power came on Con Buchanan, the division superintendent, had the children transported to the park in special cars in no time hardly, handling the crowds in a particularly efficient manner.

This afternoon thes ports program is attracting attention and some interesting contests are being decided

Thursday Eldora Park was the gathering place for a record breaking crowd, the occasion being t he annual Monongahela school picnic.

CHILDREN ARE SAVED FROM FIRE

Members Lieut. Herschelroath's Family Have Narrow Escape

STARTS FROM CANDLES

Five children were rescued one morning this week from a fire on the third floor of the Volunteers of America's Home for Girls in Philadelphia, says a Philadelphia newspaper. The children who were rescued were four children and a niece of Lieutenant H. E. Herschelroath, formerly of Charleroi. They are: Edna, fourteen years old; Viola, nine years old; Harry, four years old; Alvin, two years old, and Tillie Dressler, ten years old.

Both Lieutenant Herschelroath and his wife were in Charleroi,where they attended the funeral of Mrs Herschelroath's mother. They were expected to return in the evening but did not appear.

It is said that Edna and Tillie Dressler had failed to extinguish candles which they had lighted and placed on a bureau. They burned down until the flames set fire to the bureaucover. When the girls awoke they were choked with smoke,but managed to grope their way tothe windows to call for help. Lieutenants of the Volunteers rescued them.

DECIDED CHANGES IM NEW TRAIN SCHEDULE

Two New Trains to be Installed in Valley Service

RUNNING TIME REDUCED

Morning and Evening Expresses to Pittsburg to Make Few Stops

Decided changes are to be effective in trains on the Monongahela division, when the new schedule is put into effect on Sunday. Among the changes to be in effecture two entirely new trains, and two fast trains to Pittsburg. Of the new trains one will be northbound, to be due in Charleroi at 7:40 o'clock and the other will be at rain southbound from Pittsburg, due in Charleroi at 8:37. The fast trains will be the morning Pittsburg train leaving Charleroi at 9:04 o'clock and making but four stops between here and the city, and the train leaving here at 5:50 o'clock in the evening, arriving in Pittsburg 7:13 completing teh trip in just 22 minutes better time than it does now. Other important changes are made effective.

A change is made in the train from Uniontown at noon, so that instead of it getting here at 1:09 o'clock, it wil arrive at 12:39. This will be in reality a change of trains, the one which formerly arrived at 1:09 to arrive at 1:53 from Brownsville.

The schedule of the various trains and their changed time is given as follows: Northbound—5:37 to 5:33; 7:06 to 6:43; 7:40 (new,) 9:10 to 9:04; 10:39 to 10:39; 12:33 to 12:29; 1:09 to 1:53; 3:34 to 3:27; 4:38 to 5:03; 5:41 to 5:50; 8:28 to 8:31.

Southbound—6:28 to 6:49; 7:53 to 7:46; 8:37 (new); 9:51 to 10:19; 11 to 11:52; 12: 28 to 12:32; 2:57 to 2:57; 5:18 to 5:18; 6:31 to 6:21; 9:04 to 9:04; 1:16 (bummer) to 1:16.

In Sunday trains there are n ot many changes. Possibly the greatest changge is that the train from Uniontown will by the new schedule arrive at 9:54 instead of 9:01. Sunday trains northbound will be as follows: 7:29; 9:05; 12:20; 2:42; 5:55; 9:54. Southbound Sunday trains will arrive at 8:43; 11:32;2:50;5:50; 7:55; 12:19, only one train the one to be due at 2:50 being changed. It formerly ran six minutes later.

Trains from Uniontown will be the 6:43 in the morning, the 12:32 at noon and the southbound Uniontown train will be the 6:49 in the morning, the 12:28 at noon and the 6:21 in the evening.

Interested in Corn Crop

Pennsylvania Railroad Issues Booklet Treating of Methods of Corn Culture

That the Pennsylvania Railroad is determined to use its influence to increase the quantity and the quality of the corn grown on its lines is indicated i na booklet just issued by its freight department on the subject of "Corn Culture."

The Railroad calls to the attention of farmers that the profit from an acre of corn in the immediate territory traversed by its lines exceeds that of any of the great corn growing sections; it states that in pursuance of its policy to place with the farmers the benefits of the most scientific research and experience in agricultural development, it arranged with the Pennsylvania State College for the treatise on corn culture. The company says it hopes and believes that this effort toward education will prove of mutual benefit to the farmer and the company.

Other pamplets issued by the Freight Department of the Company devoted to agricultural development and farm operation are as follows:

The Essentials of Soil Fertility.
Alfalfa.
Orchard Culture.
Potato Culture.
Seed Grain Suggestions.

HUMAN GREED.

That the more man gets, the more he wants, is not expressing a new thought, says the Punxsutawney Spirit. A particularly striking example, however is to be had in the present high cost of living. A comparatively few years ago, when there were no combinations of manufacturing interests, no combinations of dealers selling farm and dairy products, when every manufacturer and wholesaler was for himself, a man could live in comparative comfort on a wage ranging from $1.50 to $2.00 a day. Now, when manufacturers in all lines throughout the country are combining, presumably for reducing production costs, eliminating duplication in the various details of delivering the goods to the market, etc. it has reached a stage where the average man ekes out a bare existence.

What was originally a movement to reduce manufacturing and marketing costs, has developed into a movement to squeeze every dollar out of the public that can possibly be obtained. No one in this country has denied much in the last decade toward creating a demand for radical control by the government on the part of the people who are constantly brought face to face with increased costs in life's necessities than these men who, by first eliminating competition, have succeeded, within a comparatively brief period, in causing prices to rise from fifty to two hundred per cent for everyday necessities. It is this set of men, who are constantly deprecating the demand for governmental supervision, or ownership of the big business and manufacturing interests of the country. That combinations are necessary for economical manufacture and sale of commodities is obvious but thus far the heads of these combinations have failed to demonstrate that they can resist the temptation of taking advantage of the people who have thus far tolerated them. They have been guilty of sending prices upward far out of proportion to the increases in the workingman's earning powers.

Everywhere investigations are being instituted to determine the high cost of living. Cities, States and the Government have taken the matter up. But why these investigations? Is there not on every hand evidence of the cause. And when an investigation is concluded and the cause determined are results accomplished?

The most recent fiasco of an effort to break up high prices for a vital necessity was the attempted prosecution of the packers at Chicago. Hundreds of pages of evidence were produced, but the Government's case fell through, because there was not enough evidence to convict them. Yet since the packers have been discharged the price of beef has almost doubled.

There is no sugar trust—legally, at least—yet the price of sugar has been higher for almost a year by 20 to 50 per cent. than any time within the past 15 years. There is no shoe trust, yet shoes are advancing 50 cents per pair, and so one could keep on giving examples throughout the list of daily necessities.

Where will it all end if those controlling prices do not recede from their present position, and content themselves with reasonable profits? There is only one answer—the absolute elimination of the individual from the field, though Government control or ownership.

TRADE BOOSTING.

We hear a great deal about trade boosting these days. City and town organizations make regular trips into adjacent territory in an effort to get people to come to their town to trade. These efforts are more or less sporadic, and are largely futile because the business men for the most part of every city and town are not trade boosters themselves. They profit to some extent by what the organization does for them, but they do not follow it up by individual effort.

In every town or city there are one or two or half a dozen merchants who advertise regularly, do the bulk of the selling in their community and are known widely in their respective territories. These are trade boosters. The non-boosters profit to some extent by efforts the trade boosters of their own community, but as they pursue the tactics of the pot hunter—sit and wait—they derive the pot hunter's luck. Four big stores are widely known in Pittsburg because they are trade boosters. Outsiders can name two or three establishments in Chalreroi without having to stop and think, because they are trade boosters. The waiters wait for their local boosters to help them out, but they do not realize that their waiting policy also brings them in competition with the boosters of other nearby cities and towns.

The town in which there are as many boosters as there are waiters soon gets the reputation of being a live wire.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"While the Dr. Osler theory is not exactly enforced in all the large mercantile and business establishments," said a Philadelphia woman who visited in Charleroi last week, "I know of several in our city which give their employes to understand that they do not care to have gray haired people in their employ. In many of the big department stores are salesmen and saleswomen grown old in the service who are naturally among the best salespeople in the establishment, but there is a popular prejudice that old people are not up to date, and do not know current styles and new modes so well as smart looking young people. For this reason many customers ask for a young saleswoman to wait on them, and all the salesmen and saleswomen of some of the large department stores are given a gentle hint that in order to hold their jobs they must not permit any gray hairs to show.

"There is also a large office establishment in the city that enforces the same rule. Only men are employed there, but every one of them, many of whom are veterans in the service, display black or brown hair with never a silver thread in sight. Age doesn't make any difference with this firm so long as the employe is efficient, but he mustn't permit the flight of years to be apparent."

John D. Berryman of J. W. Berryman & Son's big department store, has a young hopeful who bears the same front name as himself. This youngster, who is not yet old enough to attend school, was very much interested in the circus which exhibited here last Saturday. The day before the arrival of the show, a neighbor in order to tease the lad, told him the circus wasn't coming to Charleroi.

"Why not?" asked the lad, very much perturbed.

"Oh because the elephant can't pack his trunk," was the reply.

That tickled the boy, and his mother who heard the joke told him to work it off on his sisters when they came from school. The lad waited until all were assembled at the supper table, when he exclaimed.

"Oh, girls, the circus isn't coming tomorrow."

"Why not?" they all chorused.

"Because," replied the youngster, "the elephant can't get his satchel fixed."

THE PRIMER OF SUCCESS

Do you want a position?
Do you want a girl?
Do you want to rent your furnished room?
Do you want to sell your house?
Do you want to sell your eggs, poultry or live stock?
Have you lost anything?
Have you anything to trade?
Do you want to sell your piano?

There are many who want to do one or the other of these things. Most of them don't know how to go about it. If they could only tell the people what they want they would be all right. If they could only let the people know without disclosing their identity that might be better still.

If you wont to buy, sell or secure any of the above, or if you want to trade anything, did it ever occur to you that the best thing in the world to do is to use the Classified Columns of the Mail.

Why do we give you this advice? To make business for ourselves? Certainly! To help you? Just as certainly! We are the medium between you and what you want. You just place a cent-a-word advertisement with us and we spread this advertisement before Five Thousand People Every Day. That is the market with which we bring you into touch. Isn't the advantage of being placed in touch with 5,000 people worth this insignificant sum?

Tod Mannow's Strategy

"Shucks!" said Tod Mannows, distinctly. Then he sat down on the lowest step and glumly surveyed the back yard. Never before had he noted how extremely large is a back yard 30 by 30 feet.

Thrusting his hands into his pockets he leaned back stiffly and continued to glower at the vast expanse. The reason for this sudden and extreme dislike for the rear part of the Mannows premises was the ultimatum issued that morning at breakfast by the elder Mannows.

"I'm tired of your fooling around getting into mischief all through vacation," his father had announced at the conclusion of an episode relating to two broken windows, a carelessly thrown baseball and an irate neighbor. "You are big and strong enough to devote your surplus energy to something useful. I have long wished to have a garden. Now, you may spade up the entire back yard so that next spring it will be in condition to plant. You can take as long as you like for its accomplishment, but you've got to work at it for awhile every day."

Tod was well acquainted with his father. Nothing short of a convulsion of nature and the complete wiping out of the Mannows premises would suffice to alter that decree. Therefore, he remarked again with desperate emphasis, "Shucks!" and then got to his feet slowly.

At an ear piercing whistle from the next yard he looked even more glum than before. The summons emanated from Fatty Dyckman and meant that the boys were gathering in the baseball lot.

"Can't!" Tod yelled to Fatty. "Gotta spade a garden!"

Fatty's head rose above the high board fence. "Aw, cumalong!" he said, unbelievingly. He looked serious, however, when Tod appeared at the basement door with a spade in his hand. "Gee!" he breathed. "That's fierce! Mebbe I'll help you," Fatty said nobly. "If I get time, that is," he added, more cautiously.

Tod did not cheer up at the handsome offer. He was a pessimist on this subject. Fatty's head disappeared, and Tod with great effort spaded up at least a teaspoonful of the soil. Manual labor was his acute idea of nothing at all to do.

Suddenly something in the dirt glittered and he pounced upon it breathlessly. It was nothing but a bit of glass. As he turned it over in his fingers an idea crept into his brain. A grin slowly transfigured his features. Then he dropped the piece of glass and the spade, ran to the rear door and slid into the house.

When he emerged he had his mother's embroidery scissors and a large back comb that belonged to his sister. It had been laid away in her top bureau drawer to await the return of the style demanding large back combs in one's hair. Thickly strewn over it were big, sparkly brilliants which glittered in the sunlight like the best product of the South African mines.

It did not take the boy long to pry them all loose. They made a handful.

Tod planted three of them very near the spot where he had spaded up the teaspoonful of soil. Then he distributed the others over the yard with the skill of a veteran salter of gold mines. Next he strolled to the fence. Fatty was just starting out with his catchers' glove.

"Yow-w-w!" Tod yelled. "I must 'a sprained by wrist!" He dangled it in the air. "Pa'll jump on me for not spadin', too!"

Fatty looked irresolute. "I s'pose I kin do a little before the boys git there," he said, heroically. He climbed the fence and took the spade.

"Right here I started," Tod directed, nursing his wrist. "Oh, gee!"

Fatty had shoveled two swadefuls of earth when he suddenly went down on his knees.

"What's the matter?" asked Tod from the back steps.

"Nothin'," Fatty replied, bending over something he held in his hand. He made another wild grab into the dirt. Then he turned around with an excited face.

"Say," he called. "You'd better go into the house and lie down. You can't tell about a sprain. Mebbe it's broke. You wanta be careful! Any how, I like to spade!"

"All right," said Tod reluctantly. "Don't work too hard," he cautioned Fatty as he disappeared through the back door.

Frequently during the morning he abandoned his hammock and wild west book and plate of fudge, which his sister thought she had hidden behind the top row of books, to look out upon Fatty Dyckman. That energetic young person was toiling furiously. Dirt streaked his perspiring face, and frequently he paused and rubbed his aching back. Now and then he made a triumphant grab into the spaded earth.

UNSEEN DANGER

The shriek of a locomotive is a warning of immediate danger so great that it must be heeded, but many people face other dangers as great without knowing it.

H. Lloyd of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., writes us about a recent experience as follows: "A generally debilitated condition of the system, which had lasted for two months and was growing worse, impressed on me the necessity of using a good strengthening tonic. Vinol was my choice because I had heard so much of it, and I am pleased to say it has fulfilled every reccommendation. I have regained my usual strength, and other members of the family have also found Vinol very beneficial."

If you are fagged out and weak, have poor appetite, sleep badly or are in low spirits, then you should heed the warning and begin promptly to build up your strength with Vinol. It renews and enriches the blood, and brings back your old-time vigor and vitality. You can use Vinol at our risk, for we guarantee it to help you. Piper Bros., Druggists, Charleroi, Pa.

Durability of Steel.

It has been shown that nearly all the failures of steel occur very early in its history. If a plate or bar of mild steel lasts for a year in service, it may be trusted to last for many years. The most injurious thing is continued bending backward and forward, as in what is called the "panting" of a boiler end. As one authority puts it, steel has a somewhat "tumultuous youth," but "in middle age it is trustworthy, and in old age beyond reproach." In regard to corrosion there is a difference of opinion, some holding that steel corrodes more readily than iron.—Harper's Weekly.

Where Did He Learn It?

A teacher of English, in order to disprove the charge that high school pupils know little about the vital things that are going on around them, gave a test in which she asked for definitions of such terms as tariff, reciprocity, the labor problem. In the paper of a 15-year-old she found this: "The labor problem is how to keep the working people happy without paying them enough to live on."—La Follett's Weekly.

Tells Consumptives How He Got Well

Tuberculosis is said to be curable by simply living in the open air and taking an abundance of fresh eggs and milk. Undoubtedly, some persons are benefited in this way; but the appropriate remedy for Consumption is Eckman's Alterative. Do all you possibly can to add to strength and increase weight, eat wholesome, nourishing food, and breathe the cleanest and purest air—then, to the sensible things of right living, add the tonic and curative effects of Eckman's Alterative. Read what it did in this case.

909 West Street, Wilmington, Del.

"Gentlemen: In January, 1906, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs. My physician, one of the leading practitioners, said that it was lung trouble. I took eggs and milk in quantities, but I got very weak, and I kept on working in the store. The doctors said I would not gain in weight as long as I stayed in the store, but I kept on working and prayed each day that I might get well. I believe my prayers were answered, for Mr. C. A. Lippincott, my employer (Lippincott & Co., Department Store, 306 to 314 Market street, Wilmington, Del.), had learned of a remedy called Eckman's Alterative that had done great good, and upon his recommendation I began taking it at once. This was about June, 1908. I continued faithfully, using no other remedy, and finally noticed the clearing of the lungs which appeared to be old chunks of blood coming up. I now have no trouble with my lungs. I firmly believe Eckman's Alterative saved my life. I sent my spittle later to the State Board of Health to be examined for tuberculosis bacilli, and none were found.

"My mother died from Consumption when I was about two years old.

"I make this statement so that others may learn of the wonderful merits of Eckman's Alterative. I regard my recovery as being miraculous."

(Signed Affidavit) JAS. SQUIRES.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. METHODISTS AND EPISCOPALS PLAY REAL BASEBALL

Neither Able to Score More Than One Run in Seven Innings

WAS PITCHERS' BATTLE

Neither the Methodists nor the Episcopals were able to corrade enough scores to claim a victory Thursday night, in what proved to be the first real baseball contest of the season in the Church League. It kept them hustling like blazes to get one apiece and there was little show for any kind of record being broken except the pitching record.

The pitchers pitched the kind of ball like you sometimes see in the big leagues. Bege for the Methodists managed to keep the Episcopal hits down to three. Briggs allowed the Methodists eight but they were scattered over so wide a territory that they did practically no damage. Another very noticeable feature was the entire absence of error—a fact that would give the despondent Bostonians or struggling Pittsburg Pirates nervous prostration if the secret leaked out.

Lowstutter, a High School boy, scored the first run. It was for the Methodists and was their first, last and only. Henry has a swing like a big leaguer, and he banged the horsehide like a big leaguer to deep middle. This was done with one out. Bege fouled out. Then with the discernment of an art critic picking out a prize winning picture Protine selected a "groover." When it stopped going he was safely ensconced on third, and young Lowstutter had crossed the plate. Riggs retired the side by striking out.

The Episcopal run was scored by Crumrine in the second. He singled past shortstop and stole second, while Keifer was engaged in the interesting pastime of strikng where the ball wasn't. Roberts was out. With two down Ronalds hit between center and right and Crumrine by fast going crossed the plate. Steck flied out to shortstop, retiring the side The Episcopals had another slight chance to score when Cratty worked around to third in the sixth by stealing. An attempt to come home proved fatal.

The Methodists had a chance to score when Righter singled in the fourth. He stole second, and tried to score when Binns singled. That was their final chance. Score:

The Last Word.

Creep into thy narrow bed,
Creep and let no more be said
Vain thy onset! All stand fast
Thou thyself must break at last

Let the long contention cease!
Geese are swans and swans are geese.
Let them have it how they will!
Thou art tired best be still

They outtalked thee, hiss'd thee, tore thee?
Better men fared thus before thee;
Fired their ringing shot and pass'd,
Hotly charged—and sank at last.

Charge once more, then be dumb!
Let the victors, when they come,
When the forts of folly fall
Find thy body by the wall!

Growing Beet Sugar in England.

Remarkable success has attended the efforts of growers of sugar beets in Herefordshire, England. A good high average for a crop is 15 tons to the acre of roots bearing 15 per cent. of sugar. The Herefordshire farmers, in spite of rough and ready methods and small knowledge of the crop, grew up to 27½ tons to the acre, with a sugar content of 19 per cent. The purity of the sugar was exceptionally high.

The news from Paris is that taffeta and surah coats and skirts lead everything else. They have taken the place of linen, of serge and of foulard. The only trimming beyond a few cord loops and braid buttons is a pointed collar on the coat made of the kind of linen used for men's dress shirts. By the way, this linen is in high fashion now, and is made into plain blouses with Irish lace collars for autumn coat suits.

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED TO CLASS OF ELEVEN

Commencement Exercises Are Held by Graduates

CLASS ADDRESS MADE

W. D. Pollock, President of School Board, Talks of Future Prospects

With a bright, cheery outlook upon life, and with a trusting faith in the sentiment contained in their class motto, a German phrase meaning "Patience overcomes everything," the classe of 1912 Charleroi High School entered upon their struggle in life Thursday night when they received their diplomas as graduates. That it was the beginning of activity and not the end, a fact brought out by W. D. Polock, president of the school board in his address to the class, was seemingly well appreciated by the members of the class.

When the eleven young persons assumed their places in a semi-circle on the stage. the girls attired with true simplicity in white, and boys in sombre black, they presented a charming appearance. Palms formed the background. Essays were read by Miss Kate Gamble, Miss Erma Holyfield and Miss Sara Crowthers. Keith Campbell was the orator of the class. Miss Marie Whitehead gave an essay in the form of an oration. The musical part of the program was handled by Miss Behel Bowman, Zenobe Boudoux, Thomas Tippins, and Miss Elma Collins. Readings were given by Miss Letitia Morris and Miss Isabella Dorbritz.

Rev. John R. Burson delivered the invocation. Miss Bethel Bowman rendered a piano solo "Petite Bolero" by Henry Ravina, with an accomplished ease. Her efforts were greatly appreciated.

Miss Kate Gamble had as her subject for her essay, "The Defense of the Nation." In it she treated of the value of education as a national defense. Sre said that we must maintain true democracy, and education is the greatest factor in that direction.

"Lucia di Lammermoor," by Donizetti, was rendered on the violin by Zenobe Boudoux. He handled this most difficult composition with a skill that brought forth well merited applause.

Pleading for a college education for women that they might be better equipped for the earthly struggle, Miss Erma Holyfield read an essay on "The Higher Education of Women.' She said that a college prepared woman that she might assume her proper sphere in the world with a greater dignity; that it made her more resourceful and economical and a better head of the home.

Miss Lettia Morris read to the delectation of the numerous friends and patrons of High School assembled the "Prelude to the Vision of Sir Launfal," by Lowell.

"Life and Faith of Jack London,' which constituted in the greater part a biography of the noted Socialist writer, was treated by Miss Sara Crowthers in an essay. Miss Crowthers told of London's early struggles to break into the higher crust of society, his disappointments, and finally when he did arrive, of his disappointment at finding it shallow and vain, with the result that he returned to the world of sincerity.

With an artistic touch Thomas Tippins rendered "Twittering of Birds," a composition of Raffaeli Billema. The young perfomer was roundly applauded for this piano number.

"Lady Clare," which is a beautiful Tennyson poem was read by Miss Isabella Dorbritz. The reading was handled in a characteristic manner that brought out its best points vividly, commanding the instant attention of every listener.

Keith Campbell in hsioration of "The World's Greatest Generals." Among them he named the old time conquerors. such as Alexander the Great, Hannibal, Caesar and then descended to the present age mentioning Napoleon as a great soldier and general; Washington, the Father of Our Country as a general of the greatest executive ability, and then spoke of the renowned generals of the Civil War, U. S. Grant and his illustrious rival for honors, Robert E. Lee. Of the great generals he named he said they were not only soldiers but active men of affairs, who lived for the country's good.

Miss Elma Collins was the soloist of the class and she rendered a pleasing soprano selection, "The Wind." Miss Collins has a voice of beautiful quality and wide range. She won decided applause.

Beginning with the quotation from William Dean Howells that "When an American is not trwing to make money he is trying to make a joke." Miss Marie Whitehead treated the subject, "Humorous America." She said that the American people honestly tried to get all the enjoyment out of life they could, and gave as evidence the fact that in New York city there are twice as many comedies as tragedies produced in the big theatres. She referred to Mark Twain as the father of American humor, and spoke of Lincoln, Irving and J. Howard Davis as among the greatest humorists in American history.

In his address to the class W. D. Pollock president of the school board spoke of the High School of the future, which he said he believed would contain things that would be of more use to the boy and girl of the day than some of the subjects which are now taught. Explaining, he said such things as Domestic Science and Manuel Training would find their way into the curriculum. In speaking to the class he said: "Be sure you have the foundation of yau character builded upon the rocks, and not on the sands. I hope you are building so that however hard the storm of life may assail you they will not batter down your character edifice. I present you these diplomas as evidence that thus far you have withstood the turmoils and wrecks of time and have succeeded in arising to the plane where you are entitled to more than usual honor."

The High School orchestra played numbers preceding the program that won applause. Rev. E. N. Duty pronounced the benediction at the conclusion of the exercise.

Members of the class which received diplomas were:

Elma Myrtle Collins, Marie Emily Whitehead, Kate Augusta Gamble, Zenobe Boudoux, Isabella Euphemia Dorbritz, Bethel Sterling Bowman, Thomas Adam Tippins, Harry Keith Campbell, Erma Cuzine Holyfield, Letitia Elizabeth Morris, Cara Crowthers.

SAYS HE IS GOING TO STARTLE POLITICIANS

Callaghan Thinks He Has a Speech That is a Hummer--Declares He is Answer to Much Discussed Question

"In my speech tonight at the corner of Fifth street and Fallowfield avenue, I'm going to say something that will startle all the politicians of the United States," said Hon Edward Callaghan, who announces that he feels sure of his nomination as the Democratic candidate for President of the United States at the Baltimore convention. "I feel sure that the prophecy of Senator Morgan of Alabama is about to be fulfilled. Here is an extract of that speech, delivered in the United States Senate May 26, 1892. It is the most wonderful political prophecy ever made. Read it!"

The extract of Senator Morgan's speech submitted by Mr. Callaghan is as follows:

"If we produce in the United States 70 per cent of the silver in the world, we have more interest in giving it a money value than any other people in the world. In the month of June the politicians of this country will find that the people will turn their little plans upside down. A man will arise against them who will represent the popular will; a man who is obedient to the construction and the will of the people, and has the courage to declare his position and he will overthrow the money power in spite of all we can do."

"Who is that man unless it be Callaghan of Estherly Terrace, who is attracting the attention of the masses at the present time?" continued Mr. Callaghan. "This speech of Senator Morgan's was delivered in the first session of the 52nd Congress, and is printed in volume 23 of the reports on pages 4704-05."

ELDORA SCENE OF HAPPY GATHERING

Big Crowd There Today to Enjoy School Children's Annual Picnic--Program of Sports This Afternoon

With the weather man behaving usually well and with appointments most auspicious, the annual school picnic and outing is being held at Eldora Park today. A large concourse of children is at the park, and providing the weather keeps good all this afternoon, one of the record breaking crowds of the season at the park is looked for.

The children were carried on special cars to the park, arriving there between 10 and 12 o'clock. Unfortunate accidents which fate dictated should happen this day above all others at two power houses, delayed transportation a trifle but really didn't interfere with the supreme enjoyment of the day for the children. When the power came on Con Buchanan, the division superintendent, had the children transported to the park in special cars in no time hardly, handling the crowds in a particularly efficient manner.

This afternoon thes ports program is attracting attention and some interesting contests are being decided.

Thursday Eldora Park was the gathering place for a record breaking crowd, the occasion being the annual Monongahela school picnic.

CHILDREN ARE SAVED FROM FIRE

Members Lieut. Herschelroath's Family Have Narrow Escape

STARTS FROM CANDLES

Five children were rescued one morning this week from a fire on the third floor of the Volunteers of America's Home for Girls in Philadelphia, says a Philadelphia newspaper. The children who were rescued were four children and a niece of Lieutenant H. E. Herschelroath, formerly of Charleroi. They are: Edna, fourteen years old; Viola, nine years old; Harry, four years old; Alvin, two years old, and Tillie Dressler, ten years old.

Both Lieutenant Herschelroath and his wife were in Charleroi, where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Herschelroath's mother. They were expected to return in the evening but did not appear.

It is said that Edna and Tillie Dressler had failed to extinguish candles which they had lighted and placed on a bureau. They burned down until the flames set fire to the bureau cover. When the girls awoke they were choked with smoke, but managed to grope their way to the windows to call for help. Lieutenants of the Volunteers rescued them.

DECIDED CHANGES IM NEW TRAIN SCHEDULE

Interested in Corn Crop

Pennsylvania Railroad Issues Booklet Treating of Methods of Corn Culture

That the Pennsylvania Railroad is determined to use its influence to increase the quantity and the quality of the corn grown on its lines is indicated i na booklet just issued by its freight department on the subject of "Corn Culture."

The Railroad calls to the attention of farmers that the profit from an acre of corn in the immediate territory traversed by its lines exceeds that of any of the great corn growing sections; it states that in pursuance of its policy to place with the farmers the benefits of the most scientific research and experience in agricultural development, it arranged with the Pennsylvania State College for the treatise on corn culture. The company says it hopes and believes that this effort toward education will prove of mutual benefit to the farmer and the company.

Other pampiets issued by the Freight Department of the Company devoted to agricultural development and farm operation are as follows:

The Essentials of Soil Fertility.
Alfalfa.
Orchard Culture.
Potato Culture.
Seed Grain Suggestions.
Beef Production in Pennsylvania.
Use of Dynamite on the Farm.

Two New Trains to be Installed in Valley Service

RUNNING TIME REDUCED

Morning and Evening Expresses to Pittsburg to Make Few Stops

Decided changes are to be effective in trains on the Monongahela division, when the new schedule is put into effect on Sunday. Among the changes to be in effect are two entirely new trains, and two fast trains to Pittsburg. Of the new trains one will be northbound, to be due in Charleroi at 7:40 o'clock and the other will be at rain southbound from Pittsburg, due in Charleroi at 8:37. The fast trains will be the morning Pittsburg train leaving Charleroi at 9:04 o'clock and making but four stops between here and the city, and the train leaving here at 5:50 o'clock in the evening, arriving in Pittsburg 7:13 completing teh trip in just 22 minutes better time than it does now. Other important changes are made effective.

A change is made in the train from Uniontown at noon, so that instead of it getting here at 1:09 o'clock, it wil arrive at 12:39. This will be in reality a change of trains, the one which formerly arrived at 1:09 to arrive at 1:53 from Brownsville.

The schedule of the various trains and their changed time is given as follows: Northbound—5:37 to 5:33; 7:06 to 6:43; 7:40 (new,) 9:10 to 9:04; 10:39 to 10:39; 12:33 to 12:29; 1:09 to 1:53; 3:34 to 3:27; 4:38 to 5:03; 5:41 to 5:50; 8:28 to 8:31.

Southbound—6:28 to 6:49; 7:53 to 7:46; 8:37 (new); 9:51 to 10:19; 11 to 11:52; 12: 28 to 12:32; 2:57 to 2:57; 5:18 to 5:18; 6:31 to 6:21; 9:04 to 9:04; 1:16 (bummer) to 1:16.

In Sunday trains there are n ot many changes. Possibly the greatest changge is that the train from Uniontown will by the new schedule arrive at 9:54 instead of 9:01. Sunday trains northbound will be as follows: 7:29; 9:05; 12:20; 2:42; 5:55; 9:54. Southbound Sunday trains will arrive at 8:43; 11:32; 2:50; 5:50; 7:55; 12:19, only one train the one to be due at 2:50 being changed. It formerly ran six minutes later.

Trains from Uniontown will be the 6:43 in the morning, the 12:32 at noon and the southbound Uniontown train will be the 6:49 in the morning, the 12:28 at noon and the 6:21 in the evening.

HUMAN GREED.

That the more man gets, the more he wants, is not expressing a new thought, says the Punxsutawney Spirit. A particularly striking example, however is to be had in the present high cost of living. A comparatively few years ago, when there were no combinations of manfacturing interests, no combinations of dealers selling farm and dairy products, when every manufacturer and wholesaler was for himself, a man could live in comparative comfort on a wage ranging from $1.50 to $2.00 a day. Now, when manufacturers in all lines throughout the country are combining, presumably for reducing production costs, eliminating duplication in the various details of delivering the goods to the market, etc. it has reached a stage where the average man ekes out a bare existence.

What was originally a movement to reduce manufacturing and marketing costs, has developed into a movement to squeeze every dollar out of the public that can possibly be obtained. No one in this country has done so much in the last decade toward creating a demand for radical [illegible] the government on the part of the people who are constantly brought face to face with increased costs in life's necessities than these men who, by first eliminating competition, have succeeded, within a comparatively brief period, in causing prices to rise from fifty to two hundred per cent for everyday necessities. It is this set of men, who are constantly deprecating the demand for governmental supervision, or ownership of the big business and manufacturing interests of the country. That combinations are necessary for economical manufacture and sale of commodities is obvious but thus for the heads of these combinations have failed to demonstrate that they can resist the temptation of taking advantage of the people who have thus far tolerated them. They have been guilty of sending prices upward far out of proportion to the increases in the workingman's earning powers.

Everywhere investigations are being instituted to determine the high cost of living. Cities, States and the Government have taken the matter up. But why these investigations? Is there not on every hand evidence of the cause And when an investigation is concluded and the cause determined are results accomplished?

The most recent fiasco of an effort to break up high prices for a vital necessity was the attempted prosecution of the packers at Chicago. Hundreds of pages of evidence were produced, but the Government's case fell through, because there was not enough [illegible] them. Yet since the packers have been discharged the price of beef has almost doubled.

There is no sugar trust—legally, at least—yet the price of sugar has been higher for almost a year by 20 to 50 per cent. than any time within the past 15 years. There is no shoe trust, yet shoes are advancing 50 cents per pair, and so one could keep on giving examples throughout the list of daily necessities.

Where will it all end if those controlling prices do not recede from their present position, and content themselves with reasonable profits? There is only one answer—the absolute elimination of the individual from the field, though Government control or ownership.

TRADE BOOSTING.

We hear a great deal about trade boosting these days. City and town organizations make regular trips into adjacent territory in an effort to get people to come to their town to trade. These efforts are more or less sporadic, and are largely futile because the business men for the most part of every city and town are not trade boosters themselves. They profit to some extent by what the organization does for them, but they do not follow it up by individual effort.

In every town or city there are one or two or half a dozen merchants who advertise regularly, do the bulk of the selling in their community and are known widely in their respective territories. These are trade boosters. The non-boosters profit to some extent by efforts the trade boosters of their own community but as they pursue the tactics of the pot hunter—sit and wait—they derive the pot hunter's luck. Four big stores are widely known in Pittsburg because they are trade boosters. Outsiders can name two or three establishments in Chalreroi without having to stop and think, because they are trade boosters The waiters wait for their local boosters to help them out, but they do not realize that their waiting policy also brings them in competition with the boosters of other nearby cities and towns.

The town in which there are as many boosters as there are waiters soon gets the reputation of being a live wire.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"While the Dr. Osler theory is not exactly enforced in all the large mercantile and business establishments," said a Philadelphia woman who visited in Charleroi last week, "I know of several in our city which give their employes to understand that they do not care to have gray haired people in their employ. In many of the big department stores are salesmen and saleswomen grown old in the service who are naturally among the best salespeople in the establishment. [illegible] old people are not up to date, and do not know current styles and new modes so well as smart looking young people. For this reason many customers ask for a young saleswoman to wait on them, and all the salesmen and saleswomen of some of the large department stores are given a gentle hint that in order to hold their jobs they must not permit any gray hairs to show.

"There is also a large office establishment in the city that enforces the same rule. Only men are employed there, but every one of them, many of whom are veterans in the service, display black or brown hair with never a silver thread in sight. Age doesn't make any difference with this firm so long as the employe is efficient, but he mustn't permit the flight of years to be apparent."

John D. Berryman of J. W. Berryman & Son's big department store, has a young hopeful who bears the same front name as himself. This youngster, who is not yet old enough to attend school, was very much interested in the circus which exhibited here last Saturday. The day before the arrival of the show, a neighbor in order to tease the lad, told him the circus wasn't coming to Charleroi.

"Why not?" asked the lad, very much perturbed.

"Oh because the elephant can't pack his trunk," was the reply.

That tickled the boy, and his mother who heard the joke told him to work it off on his sisters when they came from school The lad waited until all were assembled at the supper table, when he exclaimed.

"Oh, girls, the circus isn't coming tomorrow."

"Why not?" they all chorused.

"Because," replied the youngster, "the elephant can't get his satchel fixed."

THE PRIMER OF SUCCESS

Do you want a position?
Do you want a girl?
Do you want to rent your furnished room?
Do you want to sell your house?
Do you want to sell your eggs, poultry or live stock?
Have you lost anything?
Have you anything to trade?
Do you want to sell your piano?

There are many who want to do one or the other of these things. Most of them don't know how to go about it. If they could only tell the people what they want they would be all right. If they could only let the people know without disclosing their identity that might be better still.

If you wont to buy, sell or secure any of the above, or if you want to trade anything, did it ever occur to you that the best thing in the world to do is to use the Classified Columns of the Mail.

Why do we give you this advice? To make business for ourselves? Certainly! To help you? Just as certainly! We are the medium between you and what you want. You just place a cent-a-word advertisement with us and we spread this advertisement before Five Thousand People Every Day. That is the market with which we bring you into touch. Isn't the advantage of being placed in touch with 5,000 people worth this insignificant sum?

Try it, and you will reap the benefit of your advertisement a thousand fold

Tod Mannow's Strategy

"Shucks!" said Tod Mannows, distinctly. Then he sat down on the lowest step and glumly surveyed the back yard. Never before had he noted how extremely large is a back yard 30 by 30 feet.

Thrusting his hands into his pockets he leaned back stiffly and continued to glower at the vast expanse. The reason for this sudden and extreme dislike for the rear part of the Mannows premises was the ultimatum issued that morning at breakfast by the elder Mannows.

"I'm tired of your fooling around getting into mischief all through vacation," his father had announced at the conclusion of an episode relating to two broken windows, a carelessly thrown baseball and an irate neighbor. "You are big and strong enough to devote your surplus energy to something useful. I have long wished to have a garden. Now, you may spade up the entire back yard so that next spring it will be in condition to plant. You can take as long as you like for its accomplishment, but you've got to work at it for awhile every day."

Tod was well acquainted with his father. Nothing short of a convulsion of nature and the complete wiping out of the Mannows premises would suffice to alter that decree. Therefore, he remarked again with desperate emphasis, "Shucks!" and then got to his feet slowly.

At an ear piercing whistle from the next yard he looked even more glum than before. The summons emanated from Fatty Dyckman and meant that the boys were gathering in the baseball lot.

"Can't!" Tod yelled to Fatty. "Gotta spade a garden!"

Fatty's head rose above the high board fence. "Aw, cumalong!" he said, unbelievingly. He looked serious, however, when Tod appeared at the basement door with a spade in his hand. "Gee!" he breathed. "That's fierce! Mebbe I'll help you," Fatty said nobly. "If I get time, that is," he added, more cautiously.

Tod did not cheer up at the handsome offer. He was a pessimist on this subject. Fatty's head disappeared, and Tod with great effort spaded up at least a teaspoonful of the soil. Manual labor was his acute idea of nothing at ll to do.

Suddenly something in the dirt glittered and he pounced upon it breathlessly. It was nothing but a bit of glass. As he turned it over in his fingers an idea crept into his brain. A grin slowly transfigured his features. Then he dropped the piece of glass and the spade, ran to the rear door and slid into the house.

When he emerged he had his mother's embroidery scissors and a large back comb that belonged to his sister. It had been laid away in her top bureau drawer to await the return of the style demanding large back combs in one's hair. Thickly strewn over it were big, sparkly brilliants which glittered in the sunlight like the best product of the South African mines.

It did not take the boy long to pry them all loose. They made a handful.

Tod planted three of them very near the spot where he had spaded up the teaspoonful of soil. Then he distributed the others over the yard with the skill of a veteran salter of gold mines. Next he strolled to the fence. Fatty was just starting out with his catchers' glove.

"Yow-w-w!" Tod yelled. "I must 'a sprained by wrist!" He dangled it in the air. "Pa'll jump on me for not spadin', too!"

Fatty looked irresolute. "I s'pose I kin do a little before the boys git there," he said, heroically. He climbed the fence and took the spade.

"Right here I started," Tod directed, nursing his wrist. "Oh, gee!"

Fatty had shoveled two swadefuls of earth when he suddenly went down on his knees.

"What's the matter?" asked Tod from the back steps.

"Nothin'," Fatty replied, bending over something he held in his hand. He made another wild grab into the dirt. Then he turned around with an excited face.

"Say," he called. "You'd better go into the house and lie down. You can't tell about a sprain. Mebbe it's broke. You wanta be careful! Anyhow, I like to spade!"

"All right," said Tod reluctantly 'Don't work too hard," he cautioned Fatty as he disappeared through the back door.

Frequently during the morning he abandoned his hammock and wild west book and plate of fudge, which his sister thought she had hidden behind the top row of books, to look out upon Fatty Dyckman. That energetic young person was toiling furiously. Dirt streaked his perspiring face, and frequently he paused and rubbed his aching back. Now and then he made a triumphant grab into the spaded earth.

UNSEEN DANGER

The shriek of a locomotive is a warning of immediate danger so great that it must be heeded, but many people face other dangers as great without knowing it.

H. Lloyd of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., writes us about a recent experience as follows: "A generally debilitated condition of the system, which had lasted for two months and was growing worse, impressed on me the necessity of using a good strengthening tonic. Vinol was my choice because I had heard so much of it, and I am pleased to say it has fulfilled every reccommendation. I have regained my usual strength, and other members of the family have also found Vinol very beneficial."

If you are fagged out and weak, have poor appetite, sleep badly or are in low spirits, then you should heed the warning and begin promptly to build up your strength with Vinol. It renews and enriches the blood,and brings back your old-time vigor and vitality. You can use Vinol at our risk, for we guarantee it to help you. Piper Bros., Druggists, Charleroi, Pa.

Durability of Steel.

It has been shown that nearly all the failures of steel occur very early in its history. If a plate or bar of mild steel lasts for a year in service, it may be trusted to last for many years. The most injurious thing is continued bending backward and forward, as in what is called the "panting" of a boiler end. As one authority puts it, steel has a somewhat "tumultuous youth," but "in middle age it is trustworthy, and in old age beyond reproach." In regard to corrosion there is a difference of opinion, some holding that steel corrodes more readily than iron.—Harper's Weekly.

Where Did He Learn It?

A teacher of English, in order to disprove the charge that high school pupils know little about the vital things that are going on around them, gave a test in which she asked for definitions of such terms as tariff, reciprocity, the labor problem. In the paper of a 15-year-old she found this: "The labor problem is how to keep the working people happy without paying them enough to live on."—La Follett's Weekly.

Tells Consumptives How He Got Well

Tuberculosis is said to be curable by simply living in the open air and taking an abundance of fresh eggs and milk. Undoubtedly, some persons are benefited in this way; but the appropriate remedy for Consumption is Eckman's Alterative. Do all you possibly can to add to strength and increase weight, eat wholesome, nourishing food, and breathe the cleanest and purest air—then, to the sensible things of right living, add the tonic and curative effects of Eckman's Alterative. Read what it did in this case:

609 West Street, Wilmington, Del.

"Gentlemen: In January, 1908, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs. My physician, one of the leading practitioners, said that it was lung trouble. I took eggs and milk in quantities, but I got very weak, and I kept on working in the store. The doctors said I would not gain in weight as long as I stayed in the store, but I kept on working and prayed each day that I might get well. I believe my prayers were answered, for Mr. C. A. Lippincott, my employer (Lippincott & Co., Department Store, 308 to 314 Market street, Wilmington, Del.), had learned of a remedy called Eckman's Alterative that had done great good, and upon his recommendation I began taking it at once. This was about June, 1908. I continued faithfully, using no other remedy, and finally noticed the clearing of the lungs, which appeared to be old chunks of blood coming up. I now have no trouble with my lungs. I firmly believe Eckman's Alterative saved my life. I sent my spittle later to the State Board of Health to be examined for tuberculosis bacilli, and none were found.

"My mother died from Consumption when I was about two years old.

"I make this statement so that others may learn of the wonderful merits of Eckman's Alterative. I regard my recovery as being miraculous."

(Signed Affidavit) JAS. SQUIRES.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever; Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists and

METHODISTS AND EPISCOPALS PLAY REAL BASEBALL

Neither Able to Score More Than One Run in Seven Innings

WAS PITCHERS' BATTLE

Neither the Methodists nor the Episcopals were able to corrade enough scores to claim a victory Thursday night, in what proved to be the first real baseball contest of the season in the Church League. It kept them hustling like blazes to get one apiece and there was little show for any kind of record being broken except the pitching record

The pitchers pitched the kind of ball like you sometimes see in the big leagues. Bege for the Methodists managed to keep the Episcopal hits down to three. Briggs allowed the Methodists eight but they were scattered over so wide a territory that they did practically no damage Another very noticeable feature was the entire absence of error—a fact that would give the despondent Bostonians or struggling Pittsburg Pirates nervous prostration if the secret leaked out.

Lowstutter, a High School boy, scored the first run. It was for the Methodists and was their first, last and only. Henry has a swing like a big leaguer, and he banged the horsehide like a big leaguer to deep middle. This was done with one out. Bege fouled out Then with the discernment of an art critic picking out a prize winning picture Protine selected a "groover." When it stopped going he was safely ensconced on third, and young Lowstutter had crossed the plate. Riggs retired the side by striking out.

The Episcopal run was scored by Crumrine in the second. He singled past shortstop and stole second, while Keifer was engaged in the interesting pastime of striking where the ball wasn't. Roberts was out. With two down Ronalds hit between center and right and Crumrine by fast going crossed the plate. Steck flied out to shortstop, retiring the side The Episcopals had another slight chance to score when Cratty worked around to third in the sixth by stealing. An attempt to come home proved fatal.

The Methodists had a chance to score when Righter singled in the fourth. He stole second, and tried to score when Binns singled. That was their final chance. Score:

The Last Word.

Creep into thy narrow bed.
Creep and let no more be said
Vain thy onset! All stand fast
Thou thyself must break at last

Let the long contention cease!
Geese are swans and swans are geese.
Let them have it how they will!
Thou art tired, best be still

They outtalked thee, hiss'd thee, tore thee?
Better men fared thus before thee:
Fired their ringing shot and pass'd,
Hotly charged—and sank at last.

Charge once more, then be dumb!
Let the victors, when they come,
When the forts of folly fall,
Find thy body by the wall!

Growing Beet Sugar in England.

Remarkable success has attended the efforts of growers of sugar beets in Herefordshire, England. A good high average for a crop is 15 tons to the acre of roots bearing 15 per cent. of sugar. The Herefordshire farmers, in spite of rough and ready methods and small knowledge of the crop, grew up to 27½ tons to the acre, with a sugar content of 19 per cent. The purity of the sugar was exceptionally high.

The news from Paris is that taffeta and surah coats and skirts lead everything else. They have taken the place of linen, of serge and of foulard. The only trimming beyond a few cord loops and braid buttons is a pointed collar on the coat made of the kind of linen used for men's dress shirts. By the way, this linen is in high fashion now, and is made into plain blouses with Irish lace collars for autumn coat suits.
